

FDA CONSUMER HEALTH INFORMATION – Ensuring the Safety of Imported Products: Q&A with David Elder

The Food and Drug Administration is responsible for ensuring the safety of the full range of regulated products that are imported into the United States. These products include food, animal feed, human and veterinary drugs, cosmetics, medical devices, and vaccines.

The director of FDA's Office of Regional Operations discusses the agency's work to fulfill this responsibility in a Q&A available at <http://www.fda.gov/ForConsumers/ConsumerUpdates/ucm048631.htm>

Sign up for e-mail notices of new FDA Consumer Updates at:

https://service.govdelivery.com/service/subscribe.html?code=USFDA_9.

View the FDA Consumer Update RSS feed at:

<http://www.fda.gov/AboutFDA/ContactFDA/StayInformed/RSSFeeds/Consumers/rss.xml>

FDA Consumer Updates may be posted and published elsewhere without permission. Please credit "FDA Consumer Health Information (www.fda.gov/consumer)" as the source. FDA values feedback on its consumer health information. Send questions, comments, or story ideas to: consumerinfo@fda.hhs.gov.